Non-Executive Director Appointment

ABOUT RoS

Registers of Scotland (RoS) is a key part of the infrastructure that supports the Scottish economy. We underpin the Scottish property market by maintaining and developing several property and court registers, including the Land Register of Scotland and its precursor, the General Register of Sasines. We provide public access to up-to-date and reliable information from these registers. Information from our registers is an essential component of the operation of the Scottish property market. As expert registrars, we set the standard in the way that information about land and property is captured, held, analysed and made available.
